A NEW LIFESTYLE

People are attracted to live in active adult communities for a variety of reasons. Most evident is the desire for better access to recreational amenities, to spend more time with their peers and eliminate home maintenance responsibilities. But also, many residents of these communities now have more time to become involved in the associations themselves, whether it is providing input, or taking a leadership role, in the Association's governance by becoming a member of a committee, or even a board member.

Once in these leadership roles, residents can face a variety of challenges in adequately addressing the varied, complex, and specialized financial needs of an active adult community. At WilkinGuttenplan, we want to be that support and guidance you need to enjoy your new lifestyle and role.

- Help them fully understand the financial and tax impacts of issues such as clubs, trips, facilities, and capital planning to preserve unit values and marketability
- Offer guidance to assist them in making the financial decisions best suited for their Association's specific situation

THE RIGHT "ADDRESS" FOR FINANCIAL GUIDANCE

At the community level, we offer our clients advice and consultation on a wide range of concerns they might have as it relates to financial decisions within the association, including:

- Ensuring the stability of maintenance assessments
- Properly structuring clubs and recreational facilities to prevent adverse tax impacts
- Providing insights to balance the desires of "snowbirds" with sound fiscal policy and services addressing the needs of year-round residents

As an industry leader WilkinGuttenplan has "seen it all" and we are prepared to support communities and work collaboratively to help them make the best financial decisions.
